

TOOK HIS OWN LIFE
AND DECLARED HIS
GIRL RESPONSIBLESuicide in Connellsville of Jack Jacob Sanner of Indian Head.

HE SWALLOWED CARBOLIC ACID

Was Found in a Water Street Hotel
Room and Taken to the Hospital,
Where He Soon Expired; Arrival of His Father.

Demented as the result of an unfortunate love affair, Jack J. Sanner, son of N. L. Sanner, of Indian Head, committed suicide by drinking an ounce of carbolic acid, the contents of a two-ounce bottle of carbolic acid last night in Baxter's restaurant, on Water street. Soon after he had swallowed the poison the young man's condition was discovered. He was taken to the Cottage State Hospital, where death occurred shortly after he was admitted.

An unusual note, found in the room where he took the poison, left directions for the disposition of his body, and for the notification of relatives. It also furnished information concerning the motive. It follows:

"This is to certify that Jack Sanner did commit suicide at his own will. Please notify my father at Indian Head, Pa. Also notify my sweetheart at Clarkburg, W. Va., 11-5 West Main street.

"My sweetheart is the cause of this, and drinking. My sweetheart is in ill health. My people will pay my funeral expenses. Please remove to Sanner's morgue at once.

"This is my last request. Please notify my sweetheart, my best love, Miss Camilla Jamison, Clarkburg, W. Va., 11-5 West Main street. N. L. Sanner at Indian Head, Pa. is my father.

"I sign this with my will.

"JACK JACOB SANNER."

Deceased's father arrived in town this morning with funeral director C. H. Brooks, of Norristown, who will take charge of the body. Mr. Sanner stated that his son was 23 years of age, and had been working for the Bell Telephone Company at Blueville, Pa., as a line man with a floating salary. This fact was from town to town, making people wherever needed.

A week ago young Sanner began his vacation. Where he spent the first few days of his leave of absence is unknown, but it is believed he was in Clarkburg. There he spent the night in the family home, departing Friday morning without leaving any information as to his disposition. While at his home he appeared to be in his right mind, and was not visibly drunk.

His movements between Friday morning and last night are unknown. It was 10 P. M. when he entered Baxter's restaurant and asked for a room. After inspecting it he went out and did not return for half an hour. During the interval he visited a pharmacy and asked for a bottle of carbolic acid. When the clerk refused to give it to him he exhibited a wound on the right leg, saying he wanted the poison for an anesthetic wash. With that understanding the clerk gave it to him. He returned to his room at 10:30, and immediately swallowed the poison. He was found a few minutes after he had entered, the attention of Edward Morelock, who occupied the next room, was attracted by the sounds of vomiting. Making an examination he found Sanner in a serious condition. He was stretched across the bed, and his mouth severely burned.

Dr. G. H. Edmunds was called. He found Sanner's condition critical, and ordered him removed to the hospital, where he died, as stated. Undertaker Shins took charge of the body.

An examination of deceased's effects revealed the presence of the note. It was written on paper secured at a Pittsburgh street hotel at this hotel it was stated today that Sanner had not registered there.

In addition to his parents, deceased is survived by the following brothers and sisters: Harry L. Sanner, of America; and Charles Sanner, of Pennsylvania; Mrs. Ivy Shively of Pennsylvania; and Mrs. Lydia Sander of White, Pa.

Depletion in Sheep Growing.
Huttons farm, one of the most progressive farms of Franklin township, which always has been extensively engaged in sheep raising, had the last of his flock killed recently by the dogs. There are not enough sheep left in Jefferson township now to grow wool for a blanket, all on account of the dogs that no one owns and which force their living off the farmers' sheep flocks.

Mrs. Pankhurst in Coning.
LONDON, Sept. 10.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, militant suffragette leader, will sail from Havre, France, on the French liner Le Paquet, for America on October 11, according to information given out this morning at the W. & P. D. headquarters. Arriving in New York she will make two addresses on October 21 and on October 22 will deliver two speeches in Chicago.

Extra Service for Fair.
The West Penn fair will give extra service tomorrow for the Youngwood fair. Cars running between Scotts and Greengarden, between Mount Pleasant and Tarr, and cars on the Hecla line, will run on a 30-minute schedule.

Thaw Freed and Arrested.
Forcibly Deported to Vermont.
Captured in New Hampshire.

HARRY K. THAW

By United Press.
COALBROOK, N. H., Sept. 10.—After the most thrilling deportation and yet away on record, Harry K. Thaw was arrested here today and is now being held at the request of the New York state authorities. Thaw had fled across Vermont in an automobile, crossing the Connecticut river at Deershead Falls and coming down by Stewart to Coalbrook, N. H. He was arrested by Sheriff Drew and Bernard Jacobs. The latter is an attorney for New York state in the Thaw case.

The officers had stopped at a little school house to inquire whether anyone had noticed the Thaw machine passing, when the fugitive came into view. The sheriff raced out into the road and stopped the machine. Thaw, who was in the car, was arrested. He was taken to the little jail here, where he will be held to await further developments.

AVERTING, Vt., Sept. 10.—Harry K. Thaw is at large again. The Canadian immigration officials, after deporting him from Canada across the international boundary into Vermont at $250, have set Thaw free. No American officials were present to arrest him, so he hired an automobile and immediately departed for the Canadian border or for Deershead Falls.

The Canadian officials simply crossed the border and set Thaw free. H. H. Spaulding, proprietor of the Lake-side Inn, where the Canadian officials turned Thaw loose, said the party arrived there at 5 o'clock. Thaw stepped from the machine alone, while others kept without any effort to detain him.

"Thaw seemed to be excited," said Spaulding. "He ran up to me with money in his hand, and asked for an automobile to drive to one of the hotels standing at the side of the inn, and he made arrangements with the chauffeur to take him from Averbill. He was too excited to talk, fearing that at any moment officers would appear and arrest him."

"The Canadian officials did not have an understanding with New York state or Vermont officers. They simply did their duty."

COALBROOK, Sept. 10.—Averill, a sudden coup, so quickly that no one was prepared for it, the Canadian immigration officials this morning hustled Harry K. Thaw across the international boundary into Vermont.

Thaw was taken from the detention room of the passenger station here at 8 o'clock and placed in a high-powered automobile. He was screaming at the top of his voice.

"Help! I'm being kidnapped!" he yelled. "Help! I'm being kidnapped!" he yelled. Screaming and protesting loudly, the fugitive from Mattawon was taken through town at a high rate of speed, the car disappearing almost before the persons on the streets knew what was happening.

Immigration Officer Robertson stated that there was nothing illegal about this action of his associates. He said the car was carrying a warrant issued by the Minister of Justice in behalf of the Minister of the Interior, who is about from Ottawa.

The immigration officials went to Thaw's room at 8 o'clock and told him to prepare for a journey. He immediately surprised that his enemies were at work, and he protested vigorously against being taken from the building. The officers finally were obliged to overcome him with physical force.

At the detention room in the station Thaw fought his capture furiously. He picked up a bottle, hurling it through a window and made as much noise as he could in an effort to arouse his friends. He was again overcome, however, and kicking, scratching, biting and yelling at the top of his voice, he was dragged down the stairs to the waiting machine.

After the party had disappeared the people quickly gathered about the station. They were angry at the immigration officials, shouting that an injustice had been done and that their hero had been kidnapped. The detention room, shined down a furious struggle. Furniture was overturned and some of Thaw's possessions were scattered about.

C. J. Doherty, the Canadian minister of justice, is acting minister of the interior, and thereby has charge of all immigration matters. He held that the order of the immigration authorities for the deportation of Thaw was regular, and in issuing a warrant for Thaw's deportation he was following the restraining order of the King's court at Montreal. It is clear that some one high in authority in Canada, desiring to get rid of the easiest way of the question of what to do with Thaw, simply concluded to ship him back to the United States without previous notice to either side, and thus give him a chance to get away, and also give his opponents a chance to nab him if they could. The Canadians were anxious to be relieved of the entire case, and took this way of going about it.

At a meeting last night of the executive committee of the Columbus Day celebration to be held in Connellsville on October 13 and 14, reports from the various committees were heard. The committee on arrangements reported on a program that will be a surprise to everybody when finally completed and announced. It is expected that this committee will be able to finish its task within a few days. The committee on street decorations made a complete report, having already made contracts with a New York firm for hanging thousands of Venetian lights and other splendid decorations.

The finance committee reported good progress in raising funds to defray expenses. This committee will begin work in earnest on Monday, and it hopes that within a few days sufficient cash will be guaranteed to make a deal with the exhibition of bigger proportions than was at first anticipated.

Negotiations are still under way for an aviation exhibit. The committee having this end of the celebration in hand expects to close a deal within the next few days for one of the best birdmen to be obtained.

All reports were particularly flattering, and every person connected with the affair is doing his best to share in the biggest and best thing of the kind attempted in this section in recent years.

Senator Penrose.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The Democratic tariff revision bill passed the Senate yesterday afternoon, 41 to 37, amid a burst of applause that swept down from crowded galleries and found its echo on the crowded floor of the Senate.

The passage was attended with surprise in the final moments of the voting, when Senator La Follette, Republican, cast his vote with the Democrats and was joined a few moments later by Senator Poland, Progressive.

The Democrats had counted throughout the long tariff fight upon losing the votes of Senators Tamm and Thurston of Louisiana, Democrats, who voted against the bill yesterday, because it would put sugar on the free list.

Until the names of Senators La Follette and Poland were called, however, no one knew definitely the stand they would take, and their votes were greeted with enthusiastic applause.

President Wilson expressed great gratification over the end of the long struggle. Senator Simmons, chairman of the finance committee, who had piloted the bill through the finance committee, the Democratic caucus and the Senate, predicted that its passage would bring immediate stimulus to the business of the country.

As it passed the Senate, this tariff bill represents an average reduction of more than four per cent from the rates of the old tariff bill that passed the House and nearly 20 per cent from the rates of the existing Payne-Aldrich law.

The bill does not leave a vestige of protection for American manufacturers. The tariff has been slashed from sugar to zinc. Senator Penrose said: "I am more confirmed in the belief that had results will follow from the enactment of this bill than I was six months ago. The disturbance is going to be more than the temporary relief incident to a change of fiscal policy. It is deep seated. It strikes at the fundamental principles of American industry. We will see the result in a few months. We will see the result in a few months. We will see the result in a few months."

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—In the long tariff fight in the Senate the stand of Senator Francis G. Newlands, Democrat, of Nevada, worried the Democratic leaders. Newlands was known to be opposed to certain free lists, and it was feared that he would balk when the vote came, but he didn't.

A SCHEME TO REVIVE
THE DISABLED BANKProposition to Heavily Reduce the Capital and Surplus; Aid From Creditors Suggested.

A tentative plan for the rehabilitation of the First Second National Bank of Pittsburgh was submitted to the creditors yesterday in that city by the committee of 11 stockholders appointed about a month ago to examine into the assets of the institution. It is outlined in the following statement:

"The stockholders' meeting held and the capital reduced to $250,000 and the surplus to $170,000, and immediately thereafter there be authorized an increase of the capital to $500,000 with a surplus of $1,000,000.

"The present stockholders be allowed to subscribe for the new stock within 10 days after its authorization and thereafter the unsubscribed stock to be offered to the public.

"All business ledger accounts, and all other credits of less than $2,000, be released and placed on the same footing as before the suspension of the bank.

"Creditors having claims of $2,000 and upwards have placed to their credit and subject to check, 50 per cent of the amount of their claims and to be released to underwrite, to the extent of not more than 25 per cent of their claims, the new stock to be issued by the bank.

"If the committee approves or amends the scheme, another meeting will be called, and the creditors will give their approval. The smaller creditors those with claims of less than $25,000 against the bank it is believed, will be willing to trust to the judgment of those holding the larger claims.

The bill does not leave a vestige of protection for American manufacturers. The tariff has been slashed from sugar to zinc. Senator Penrose said: "I am more confirmed in the belief that had results will follow from the enactment of this bill than I was six months ago. The disturbance is going to be more than the temporary relief incident to a change of fiscal policy. It is deep seated. It strikes at the fundamental principles of American industry. We will see the result in a few months. We will see the result in a few months. We will see the result in a few months."

MANY MACHINES ARE BEING SOLD

Names of Connellsville Buyers Thus Far During the Current Year, With the Makes of Car Selected for Their Use.

This has been the best season in the history of the automobile trade in Connellsville, according to assertions made by some of the dealers. They report heavy sales of every kind of car, with low and medium priced machines leading in popularity. A list of machines purchased here thus far this year includes the Kline Kar, Oakland, Cole, Packard, Stoddard-Dayton, Hupmobile, Buick, Ford, Apperson and Pope-Hartford.

The Ford leads in the number of sales, with 25 to its credit. The Hupmobile, however, is close behind with 17 sales. A car that is growing in popularity is the Cole. The 1914 model is now on exhibition, and already seven machines have been sold.

A list of the cars and the Connellsville buyers this year follows:

Buick—Mrs. Anna Schmitz.
Packard—John D. Frisbee.

WHAT THE JUDGE SAID

About Ignorant and Incompetent Management of Estates.
The other day, in the city of New York, Judge Wilberforce, sitting in the Probate Court, said:

"Fortunes accumulated by years of toil often shrink with amazing rapidity in the hands of ignorant heirs and the wise provisions of wills are in many cases defeated by ignorant and improvident administration."

"This should be a warning to every man who has anything to leave, to see to it that his will be properly drawn and that a reliable and competent executor is named.—The Yough Trust Company, for instance, whose personal life, long experience and financial responsibility insure faithful administration. Beautiful booklet free—write or call for it.—Adv."

About an Old Song.
It may not be known to every one that the life of the town of Burns is a story and not a fable of fiction. It is a story of a little town through the ages. It was his privilege to demand the toll of a life, if they met in mid-air. The fact that Jenny "died" at her post-office could be proof of the fact that a small town near Ayr was meant.

The Three of Business.
The bank is the life of business and commercial structure. It is through the bank that business requires its stability and strength. What is true in a large sense is true in individual cases. Your business will be on a stronger footing if you have practical connection with a strong bank. The Citizens National Bank of Connellsville, 122 East Main street, is a commercial and checking account.—Adv."

"Big Tim" Sullivan Found.
NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—"Big Tim" Sullivan, last seen in 1907, was found this morning at the Elvinside Inn, where he had been visiting his friend Frank O'Brien, former fire commissioner.

To Hold Special Meeting.
A special meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the United Brethren Church will be held in the church Friday evening at 7:45 o'clock. A large attendance is desired.

Return from New York.
L. M. Lohman, assistant division time keeper of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, and V. J. Lowrey, returned last evening from New York City, where they enjoyed their vacation.

Leg Broken in Mine.
John Kowalek, of Royal, employed in the W. J. Kauter mine, was admitted to the Outing State hospital yesterday afternoon for treatment of a broken leg.

Now He Is in Trouble.
Louis Bear, a merchant of Chont Haven, was convicted this day before Judge Cuthbert of embezzling goods for the purpose of defrauding his creditors.

Granted Marriage License.
Walter Reynolds and Catherine Gidday, both of Buffalo, were granted a marriage license in Greensburg yesterday.

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY

Woman's World

Mrs. De Voe, President of National Council of Women Voters.

MRS. EMMA SMITH DE VOE.

Official representatives of 4,000 enfranchised women voters in ten states recently gathered at the national capital to petition congress for the immediate passage of a constitutional amendment providing for nation wide woman suffrage.

This was the first meeting of the National Council of Women Voters since the society was formed in January, 1911, by Mrs. Emma Smith De Voe of Tacoma, Wash., who is now its president.

For months and even years suffragists have approached congress in many and varied ways asking for a federal suffrage amendment. But most of the women who have come before have been seeking after the ballot.

The present representation of women told the government the other day exactly what they wanted when Mrs. Jane Addams, Miss Helen Todd of California and other women voters went before the house rules committee asking for the creation of a suffrage committee in the house similar to the one already existing in the senate.

The suffragists are sure that they will get such a committee in the near future.

Aspiration seen but one side of every question, possession many.—Lowell.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Louden of Cedar avenue, are home from an automobile trip to Harrisburg, Reading, Philadelphia and Atlantic City.

MANY ATTEND FUNERAL

John Gordon Colburn is buried at Hill Grove Cemetery.

Largely attended was the funeral of John Colburn, held at his residence at 2:30 o'clock from the residence of his parents Mr. and Mrs. Willis D. Colburn on Carnegie avenue. Impressive services were conducted by Rev. J. L. Brundage of the First Presbyterian Church, and Rev. J. P. Adams, pastor of the Christian Church. The floral tributes were numerous and handsome.

The following friends of the deceased from Williamsburg arrived at the funeral: Samuel McKim, Albert Brown, James Pfen, George Sampson, James Hunter and William Soule. At the grave the following six classmates of the deceased from Alverton arrived: John White, Vernon Lintz, Walter Hill, James Myers, John Fyner and Ambrose Cornelius. Interment in Hill Grove cemetery.

"Pape's Diapysin" Ends Indigestion, Gas, Dyspepsia and Stomach Misery in Five Minutes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, flatness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache, you can get blessed relief in five minutes. Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on these fifty-cent boxes of Pape's Diapysin, then you will understand why dyes, peptic trouble of all kinds, indigestion, and why they relieve sour out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. "Pape's Diapysin" is harmless, tastes like candy, though each dose will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many "Pape's Diapysin" eranks, as some people will call them, but you will be enthusiastic about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever take it for indigestion, gases, heartburn, sourness, dyspepsia, or any stomach misery. Get some now, this minute, and rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion in five minutes.—Adv.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ezer and son George, who have been located at Masontown for the past year, have gone to Akron, O., to make their future home. Mr. Ezer and family formerly resided at Meyersdale and Connellsville.

Noted.
All the members of the Ohio Lodge of Connellsville are called to a special meeting at the new headquarters, No. 118 East Main street (Coombs' building) for Wednesday night, September 10, at 8 o'clock. Subject of discussion to be submitted, W. H. Hannan, President.—Adv.

Will Be Guests of Dr. Edie.
Dr. E. B. Edie will entertain the Yough Medical Social Club at its regular monthly meeting, Wednesday evening at "Trosedale Farm," Pennsylvania. The trip to and from the country will be made in automobiles.

Vanderbilt Club Meeting.
The opening meeting of the Saturday Afternoon Club of Vanderbilt for the year will be held Saturday afternoon, October 1, at the home of Mrs. Jennie Gault, in Dawson.

HUEY'S PERSONAL. INVOX ACTS AS HIS JOHN LIND HERE.

SEÑOR ZAMACONA.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—With the arrival here of Senor Zamacona, representative of President Huerta of Mexico, the state department quietly renewed its efforts to solve the Mexican situation. President Wilson had sent John Lind to Mexico City to negotiate with President Huerta, and the latter in turn sent Zamacona here to represent him directly with the American administration. It was thought the state department would listen to Zamacona's presentation of the situation as seen by Huerta, but it was not believed President Wilson would change his stand. Zamacona denied before he reached Washington that he was Huerta's envoy, but little credence was placed in this denial.

THE BEERBOWER REUNION

Took Place at Terra Alta and Had the Novelty of a Wedding.

The second Beerbower Family Association reunion at Lake Terra Alta, W. Va., on September 6, 1913, was marked by a new departure in the way of a wedding. Mary Cuppitt, daughter of E. E. and Zula Beerbower Cuppitt, was married to Ray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Kelly of Terra Alta. The ceremony took place at noon in the parlors of the Lakewood Hotel, in the presence of all the members and guests of the reunion. The bride was beautifully attired in white serge and moire silk, while the bridesmaid, Edith Cuppitt, sister of the bride, was dressed in changeable old rose colored silk. The best man, Bruce Kelly, is a brother of the groom. Mrs. Edith Cuppitt rendered the wedding march. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. C. H. King, pastor of the Methodist Church of Terra Alta. A sumptuous dinner was served after the wedding.

The following were present at the reunion and wedding: Mrs. H. E. Griffin, Chicago, Ill.; Mrs. W. H. Berry and brother, J. K. Berry, Worcester, O.; Hannah Beerbower-Hearty, Mrs. Ella McMillen and son Sherrell, Masontown, W. Va.; and Mr. and Mrs. Zar Beerbower, Ernest, Jessa, Ida and Grace Beerbower, Mr. and Mrs. James Ezer and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Mitchell and son, Glade Farms, W. Va.; Mrs. Jacob B. Beerbower, Fred, William and Mr. and Mrs. Elias Beerbower, Uniontown; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Beerbower, York, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Allen Beerbower and son Bert, United, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Beerbower and daughters Ruth and Helma, Connellsville; Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Beerbower and daughter, 12 Lucile and Eleanor B., Dunbar; Mrs. Della Beerbower (Finzer) and husband, Frenton, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Grille and son, Greensburg; Mrs. W. C. and daughter, daughter, W. Va.; Parkersburg; W. Va.; Maude Guseman, Valley Point, W. Va.

The following residents of Terra Alta were present: Dr. L. George Beerbower, wife and sons, Stafford and Fred, Mrs. Mary Stafford, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Cuppitt and family, Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Cuppitt, Dr. W. L. Daily and wife and son, Prof. F. W. Cundy, Mrs. M. M. Vansickle, Dr. H. E. King, Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Kelly, secretary and treasurer of the reunion, Miss Lottie White, Miss Edith Falkenstein, Mrs. L. T. Stafford, Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Beatty and family, Mrs. Catherine Parke, Mrs. Elizabeth Foreman, W. D. Parks, Mrs. Sarah L. Harner, Gray Vandevelde and family, Mrs. Evans, Mrs. Vaughn, Mrs. Charles Miller and Mr. and Mrs. L. V. Reed, and last, but not least, that genial soul, W. E. Tait, known as "Uncle Billy," secretary and treasurer of the summer school and camp, who, in his address of welcome said he threw away the keys after opening all the amusement for the benefit of the reunion. The lakes, lawn tennis courts, hotel, etc., were at the disposal of all who wished to use them. The location is one of the most beautiful to be found anywhere, and is becoming a great camping place for boys and young men.

The association received a letter of greeting from Mrs. Beerbower-Bare, of Whiteport, Iowa, who has the original copy of the naturalization papers of Casper Beerbower, Sr., Yorktown, 1777.

Benjamin Lucile Beerbower recalled "Was Marriage a Failure." She was dressed in Dutch garb, including wooden shoes.

The following officers were elected for next year: President, Harrison Beerbower; vice president, L. G. Beerbower; secretary and historian, C. W. Beerbower; Glade Farms, W. Va., was selected as the place for the next reunion on the fourth Saturday in August, 1914.

Mrs. Griffin, niece of the late Prof. Austin Beerbower of Chicago; Mrs. W. H. Berry and brother, John Kester of Worcester, O.; grandchildren of Jacob Beerbower, were the guests of honor from a distance.

PIMPLES ON NECK AND FOREHEAD

Sore and Painful. Smarted and Burned Terribly. Very Disfiguring. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. No Eczema Since.

R. F. D. No. 1, Box 47, Creekville, Pa.—"About a year ago my skin began to break out in rough places and pimples on the back of my neck and forehead. They were very sore and painful and when I got over-heated would smart and burn something terribly. The breaking out on my forehead was in large acety scales and was very disfiguring. I hated to have people see it. While on the back of my neck it was in the form of pimples. They came to a head and were dry and very itchy. I had suffered in this way for several weeks when I saw in several papers about people being cured of skin diseases by Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I resolved to send for a sample. I bought two from my druggist and by the time I had used all of it my forehead was smooth as it ever was and I have not had the eczema on my neck or face any since." (Signed) Miss Cornelia Wosmer, Mar. 29, 1913.

GIRLSHINY SMART.

Any closely woven, rather thin woolen material would make an excellent foundation for this smart frock for a young girl. The blouse has the drop shoulder. The edges of the side portions of the blouse which overlay a plain vest of the material are hand-embroidered in small scallops with self-tone silk. The vest is buttoned down the front with colored buttons, while at each side is a little inset of silk embroidered in self-tone. The frock has been brightened by the addition of white collar and cuffs, hand embroidered.

PARISIAN SAGE FOR THE HAIR

If your hair is too dry—brittle—colorless—thin—stringy—or falling out—use Parisian Sage—now—at once. It stops itching scalp, cleanses the hair of dust and excessive oils, removes dandruff with one application, and makes the hair doubly beautiful—soft—fluffy—abundant. Try a 50c bottle to-day. It will not only save your hair, but make it grow, but give it the beauty you desire. A. A. Clarke, N. Pittsburg St.

THE MODERN EVENING GOWN HAS NO FIT AT ALL.
If the new evening costume fits like the proverbial bag, with a loose bodice blousing over a belt that makes no pretensions about being tiny, the effect will be entirely in line with the mode. Only skirts coming closely to the figure—lines these days—bodies can scarcely be too loose and free in line. This gown is a semi-Oriental affair of deep green and blue unbrothered, gray silk and gray chiffon. The button-strap slippers of black satin are beaded with cut steel and a steel-beaded ornament is worn in the hair.

Stomach Weak? Blood Bad? Liver Lazy? Nervous? WHY go along day after day suffering when aid is at hand so convenient and at so little cost. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery aids digestion and purifies the blood. As a consequence both the stomach and liver return to their normal and healthy condition. Nervousness and biliousness soon disappear. The entire system takes on new life.

For over forty years this famous old medicine has "made good"—and never more so than today, enjoying a greater sale all over the world than any other doctor's prescription.

THE DEMOCRATIC RECORD.

It is announced that the Democratic platform at Washington, in their desire to punish predatory wealth, special privilege and all the other dwellers in the Economy's Country, will, when they have finished the tariff and currency disturbances, frame some drastic anti-trust and anti-railroad legislation.

There may have been some appearance of excuse for the tariff tinkering now drawing to a close, and the currency tinkering now in full swing; but there are no good reasons, and not even any good politics, in persecuting our industries already hard put to make prosperous schedules under free trade conditions, and our railroads already subject to strict government regulation which has compelled them to raise wages twice without being permitted to add to their revenues by increased freight rates.

The railroads have been able to meet these rather trying conditions by reason of the flood of traffic which they have borne. The industrial interests have had excellent business, and it keeps up they may weather the tariff storm. If the tariff puts any large proportion of the mills and furnaces out of commission, it is likely to bring distress upon the country by materially reducing their traffic and their income. The railroads may reduce operating expenses by suspending employees, but they cannot suspend their overhead charges. The tariff, for example, goes on just the same.

There is no longer any necessity or any common sense in persecuting every big corporation in the country because of its size and without regard to its character, especially since the Federal Government has shown its ability to correct any evil practices on the part of corporations, industrial or railroad, large or small, by due process of law.

The Democrats are trying to make a record, but the record they are making just at present is one well calculated to break their political necks rather than to promote their political ambitions.

THE NEW TARIFF BILL.

The Democratic tariff bill has been finally passed, and the President and his administration are congratulating the people upon their great victory. This is Democratic satisfaction. We have had some experience with it in the past; we are unfortunately destined to have more of it in the future.

The Democratic tariff bill is a political measure of benevolent character favored by a few theorists who are strangers to experience and whose ideas are far from being practical. We are forced to assume that they are for the most part sincere in their belief that the Democratic Free Trade bill will reduce the cost of living, that being the reason given for revising the tariff. Yet it is hard to understand, in such case, why a duty was retained on rice and another imposed on bananas. Furthermore, it will be recalled that the Democratic idea of a tariff bill was one which would yield revenue rather than protection. It was insisted that protection was unlawful. The present bill will result in very little of either. In fact, an income tax was considered necessary to provide the revenue lost under the tariff bill.

The Democratic tariff bill cuts protection to the bone and leaves most American industries exposed to the competition of the underpaid labor of Europe. Its effect upon our industries and the country generally cannot be anything but injurious. The only question is the degree of depression it will produce or ruin it will wreak. This will determine that. The Democratic party wrecked itself twenty years ago upon the same rock, and it pretty nearly wrecked the whole country at the same time. Its present experience will be proof to the east, but we will hope that its victims, the people, will fare better.

It must be confessed, however, that the outlook is not rosy.

THE MAINE ELECTION.

The Maine election indicates plainly the trend of public sentiment in the country. President Wilson chose to make the choice of a Congressman in the Third District a test of his administration's acceptability to the people; and, in order to make sure that the test was thorough and complete, the administration sent all its heavy artillery into the field. Secretary Bryan was compelled to abandon a Chattanooga date and speak in the district, and even the betrayed Champ Clark was induced to campaign for the Democratic candidate. In spite of all these forces, however, the returns indicate that the Democratic strength is on the wane. The Democratic administration is already under suspicion in the Maine woods. It will be under condemnation when the Democratic tariff bill gets to working.

SCHOOL FUNDS.

The school board has developed the old question concerning the rights and responsibilities of the school treasurer by requiring the latter to deposit his money in a certain bank. The treasurer gives bond for the safekeeping of the school money, and it is not within the province of the board to dictate to him where he shall keep it, unless the board at the same time relieves him of all responsibility so far as the depository is concerned. The board does not seem to have done this. The treasurer should demand that the condition be set forth in his bond or in the records of the board. The most direct and businesslike way to handle the school funds would be to elect the bank making the best bid for the funds to the position of treasurer. It would also no doubt be the most economical.

The efforts of the Interstate Commerce Commission to improve the quality of American steel rails is commendable but not exclusive. The railroads themselves had the matter under consideration for some time, and have in some instances sold extra prices for better grades of rails. It is probable that the standard rail as determined by the commission's experts will be welcomed by the railroads, especially if its increased cost is provided for by increased freight rates.

Roughing It.

By GEORGE FITCH,

Author of "At Good Old Swash."

Roughing it consists of going back to nature and standing up before her for a few rounds without gloves. In the early days a man could step outside his cabin door into the woods and come home three hours later with four arrows and a bear scratch. It was easy to rough it then. Now it is more difficult. Only prosperous men can afford to pay the curfew necessary to rough it successfully.

Nowadays when a man desires to rough it he buys a $17 felt hat, a $40 canoe, a $15 silk tent, a flying pan, some bacon and a sack of flour. Then he buys a railroad ticket to the end of the line, gets a permit from the owner of a 10,000 acre wood lot to sleep in it, and then struggles up against nature as close as the mosquitoes will permit.

After a man has roughed it for two weeks in this fashion he acquires a mahogany complexion, a case of poison ivy and a miscellaneous large enough to stuff. Then he comes home in a parlor car and after he has talked about the wild life to select any or all his friends, his friends dive over bill boards and hide at his approach.

Some men rough it by going into northern Maine and shooting each other under the fond delusion that they are hunting moose. Others buy a cow pony and a pair of chaps and scramble over the highly irregular and entertaining West. Still others, who are more reckless, join a lecture bureau and spend a week investigating the American small town hotel.

Those lovers of nature who spend their vacations in the solemn woods roasting their own meals and paying an Indian guide his money to paddle them over the bottom of the fish-infested lake know little of the sufferings endured by the bold traveler who spends a winter night in a hotel room heated by red wall paper under a thin anemic comforter which only extends to his ankles and who slabs himself in the eye in the morning with a petrified towel trying to wash in a basin full of extra hard ice.

The traveler who has partaken for several months of the number field

"He acquires a mahogany complexion, a case of poison ivy and a miscellaneous large enough to stuff."

oke, the founded potatoes, and the pale consumptive coffee of the country hotel, whose cook left the night before, and who has stood for hours on the station platform with newspapers inside his vest, and snowdrifts on his hat waiting for the 3.45 A. M. train, which has not yet been reported as only coming when the western adventurer talks about roughing it. And that is the only time he smiles.

Special Sale of Children's and Misses' Coats $5.00

All Sizes from 6 to 15 Years

Here is an offer of School Coats that every mother in Conneltsville should be interested in. They are not a lot of sweat-shop-made garments that were picked up as a cheap job lot to be put out as make-believe bargains, but well tailored styles made up by the makers of our best lines of children's wear—the result of the failure of a foreign manufacturer while goods were in transit and the good fortune of our manufacturer to secure them at scarcely more than enough to pay the import duty.

We are anxious to have you come in and look them over. We want you to try them on and observe the fit. They are all good, practical styles—good lengths, thoroly tailored, well lined thruout, storm collars, deep cuffs, large buttons and belt. Just the sort of a garment you would like for service, comfort and wear. Made of medium weight Chinchilla in tan, brown, blue, grey and navy. City stores would quote these as $10 values. YELLOW FEVER IS CARRIED BY ONLY ONE OF MOSQUITO TRIBE

Tiny Species Attacks Silently and Steadily—Often Carried Long Distances.

Department of Agriculture Issues Bulletin Describing Insect and Habits.

HOW to recognize the Yellow Fever Mosquito is the subject of farmers' bulletin No. 547, by Dr. L. O. Howard, just published by the department of agriculture. The only species of mosquito shown to transmit yellow fever, according to this bulletin, is a form so small as to require generally a magnifying glass of twenty strands, or sixteen meshes, to the inch to prevent its entrance within doors. Both male and female can pass through a netting containing sixteen strands, or fifteen meshes, to the inch.

This mosquito is strikingly marked and, when seen under the microscope, a beautiful insect. Its general color is dark, but the abdomen is banded with silvery white, and the legs are banded alternately with black and pure white.

Insect Attacks Silently.

The carrier of yellow fever attacks silently, the humming note customary in other mosquitoes having doubtless been suppressed in the evolutionary process of its adaptation to man. Its long association with man is shown by many of its habits. It approaches stealthily from behind. It retreats upon the slightest alarm. The ankles and, when one is sitting at a table or desk, the underside of the hands and wrists are favorite points of attack.

It hides wherever it can, concealing itself in garments, working into the pockets and under the laps of coats and crawling up under the clothes to bite the legs. In houses it will hide in dark corners, under picture moldings and behind the heads of old-fashioned bedsteads. It will enter closets and hide in the folds of garments.

The yellow fever mosquito is inseparably associated with man in the tropics. It is essentially a domestic mosquito, and normally it is never found at a great distance from habitations. When there is a supply of water the entire life cycle may take place indoors.

Lives on Blood.

The yellow fever mosquito can subsist upon the blood of any warm-blooded animal, but shows a decided preference for man. It prefers the white usually active and bites only in the daytime, although where there is a light in the room it may also bite at night. It is especially voracious early in the morning about sunrise and again late in the afternoon. It does not bite in the bright sunlight out of doors and, in fact, is not in evidence in the open. On cloudy days it bites at all times.

Anti-mosquito lotions for the skin, used in unscrupulous houses at night, are not so apt to be effective against this species as against other semi-domesticated species nor when the individual is sound asleep. In the early morning hours the lotion will largely have evaporated, and the yellow fever mosquito begins to bite only when the sunlight first enters the room.

Killed by Cold.

The cessation of former yellow fever epidemics in the southern United States on the appearance of the first cold weather in November and December was due to the fact that the yellow fever mosquito is killed by cold. It is, in fact, extremely sensitive to differences in temperature. It displays the greatest activity when the thermometer is in the neighborhood of 82 degrees F. As the temperature rises or falls a few degrees above or below that point there is a markedly reduced activity. Beyond 102 degrees F. heat is fatal. When the thermometer falls below 62 degrees the mosquito becomes sluggish and will not feed.

The yellow fever mosquito is a strong flier; nevertheless, apparently it does not fly very far nor very high, and prefers the lower stories of houses to the upper.

With vessels anchored at given distances from fever-infected ports, it is most difficult to determine whether yellow fever mosquitoes found on board have flown from the shore or have been carried there concealed in the clothing of visitors from shore. There is no positive evidence that vessels anchored more than half a mile from the shore will be visited by the yellow fever mosquito in natural flight.

Vessels, once infested, may carry the species to far distant ports. The yellow fever mosquito has been found in New York upon vessels coming from Vera Cruz, and it is by such carriage of infected mosquitoes that the early outbreaks of yellow fever in Philadelphia and other northern cities are to be accounted for.

Railway trains also carry this mosquito, frequently in large numbers. It has been found from Vera Cruz, first to Cordoba and later to Orizaba, entirely by means of the railway. Almost every summer the yellow fever mosquito is carried in railroad cars from New Orleans, Mobile, and other southern cities, on through trains to Washington, Baltimore and New York. It has been seen and captured on these trains by competent entomologists.

New World Disease.

Early history points very strongly to the West Indies and the adjacent mainland as the original home of the yellow fever mosquito. There has been much discussion of the question, and ingenious arguments have been advanced to prove that yellow fever is of African origin and was imported into America through the slave trade. All things considered, however, the probabilities are that yellow fever is one of the very old diseases of mankind in the new world, and that it was taken from the new world to the old.

The yellow fever mosquito has two distinct regions—one in which it is capable of breeding continuously and another over which it spreads only during warm weather, to be annually exterminated by cold. The region of permanent distribution is limited by the frost line. The region of temporary summer distribution is determined by the means of carriage that happen to be available. It is particularly subject to carriage for long distances on board vessels, in railway trains, and even packed securely away in baggage.

In the old days of sailing vessels on very long voyages it was undoubtedly a common occurrence for the yellow fever mosquito to breed continuously in the more or less exposed water supply of vessels.

Every year it is carried to the north in the United States upon railway trains and may breed for a generation or so hundreds of miles north of its permanent breeding places. Thus while the species breeds permanently only in the extreme southern portion of the United States, it will be found every summer breeding for a generation or so in localities to which it has been carried by trains.

At St. Louis Exposition.

In 1904, for example, it was found breeding abundantly upon the grounds of the St. Louis exposition, and had one or more persons suffering with incipient yellow fever come to the exposition, the mosquitoes were there in numbers to carry the disease. Everywhere, almost throughout the southern United States in midsummer, will this mosquito be found, and this explains why epidemics of yellow fever have occurred in years past on the Atlantic coast of North America, even as far north as Montreal.

On the Pacific coast, on the other hand, the climate is so cold that this species does not seem to be able to survive. This applies to points north of San Diego, Cal.

Dr. Carlos Finlay of Havana proposed the theory in 1881 that yellow fever, whatever its cause may be, is carried by means of a certain mosquito from man to man. A careful study of the mosquito and the disease, conducted through many years in that most favorable locality, gave him a firm conviction that the two were interdependent.

In 1900 the facts were determined by scientific methods. An American army being at that time stationed in Cuba, a medical board was appointed by Surgeon General Sternberg for the purpose of investigating the acute infectious diseases prevailing in the island. In the course of the work yellow fever naturally received the main measure of attention.

The final and conclusive tests made during the autumn of 1900 were conducted with a spirit of earnestness, self-sacrifice and enthusiasm which affected every one connected with the work, even in the most subordinate positions, private soldiers not only offering themselves for the presumably dangerous tests, but insisting that they should be accepted as subjects for experimentation.

Result of Tests.

From the results the important conclusion was reached:

"The spread of yellow fever can be most effectively controlled by measures directed to the destruction of the mosquitoes and the protection of the sick against the bites of these insects."

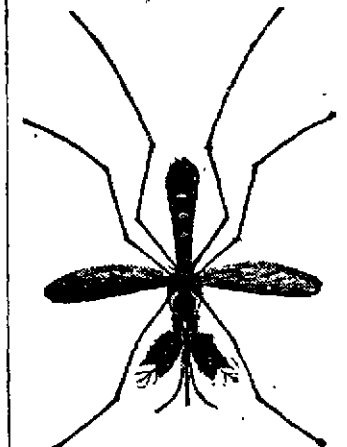

The "sanitary" work of the American army commission was almost immediately accepted by sanitarians throughout the tropics. Measures were at once instituted in the city of Havana, then under American control, looking to the eradication of yellow fever through anti-mosquito measures. The enormous success of this work, carried on under the direction of Major (now Colonel) Gorgas, is a matter of history, and by the use of similar methods the same efficient sanitation has since that time wiped out yellow fever in the isthmian canal zone. Similar work has been done by the sanitary officials in Brazil and in Mexico and other countries.

Value of Discovery.

A striking instance of the value of this discovery was shown during the yellow fever outbreak in New Orleans in 1905. Down to the middle of June of the summer of 1905 this outbreak threatened to parallel the disastrous outbreak of 1878 and even to exceed that disaster in severity. Anti-mosquito measures were undertaken, however, and pushed with great energy and with much expenditure of funds, the result being a perfectly obvious saving of from 3,000 to 4,000 lives during that summer which would undoubtedly have been lost six years earlier.

The organism that causes the disease has never been discovered. It is doubtless a protozoan, too small to be seen with the microscope, whose life cycle is partly in man and partly in the mosquito.

Returned the Compliment.

Shortly after the workmen had finished the landlord took especial pains to show to each tenant the bill for doing over his flat. The householders regarded that attention in different lights, according to the improvements they had fought for and got. Some looked frightened, thinking it portended a raise in rent, some apologetic, others defiant. The third floor right man was noncommittal. Three days later he called at the landlord's office and showed him a slip of paper. It was a bill for six shirts, some socks and ties, a hat and a blue serge suit.

"What's this got to do with me?" the landlord asked.

"Oh, nothing," said the man. "Just an interchange of courtesies. Nothing like being neighborly, you know."

Great men exist that there may be greater men.

CROOKED BILLET INN.

London's Oldest Public House and its Romantic Interior.

The Crooked Billet, an inn which stands upon Tower Hill, boasts itself, says the London Graphic, as the oldest public house in London. How far back its history goes it would be impossible to say. The records are wanting, but there is every reason to believe that the inn dates from the time of Henry VIII. Certainly no London inn is more romantic in the matter of sliding panels and concealed doors, secret rooms and underground passages—one of these reputedly leads to the Tower—and thick walls richly carved.

In the principal reception room are to be seen some magnificent oak paneling, a quaintly carved fretwork above the door and a no less richly carved mantelpiece. The ceiling is covered with a number of strange devices, with a female head—believed to represent Queen Elizabeth—in the center. The windows looking out upon the street are fastened with shutters clamped with huge iron bars.

There is a tradition that Oliver Cromwell once lived for a night at the Crooked Billet. The place was known in those days as "the old house at the bottom of the Minories."

Do not flatter yourself that friendship authorizes you to say disagreeable things to your intimates.

$3.50 Recipe Free, For Weak Men

Send Name and Address Today; You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Vigorous.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood, falling memory and lame back, brought on by excesses, unnatural drains, or the follies of youth, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his manly power should, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men and I am convinced it is the surest acting combination for the cure of debilitated manhood and vigor failure ever put together. I think I owe it to my fellow man to send them a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop dreading himself with harmful potent medicines, secure what I believe is the quickest-acting, restorative, up-building, SPOT-COLLECTING remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop me a line like this, Dr. A. L. Robinson, 2600 Lack Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain ordinary envelope, free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $2.00 to $3.00 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but I send it entirely free—A. L. R.

THE ISLAND OF THE STAIRS

Being a True Account of Certain Strange and Wonderful Adventures of Master John Hampden, Seaman, and Mistress Lucy Wilberforce, Gentlewoman, in the Great South Seas.

By CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Copyright, 1912, by Cyrus Townsend Brady

"Nor did the stairs alone awaken our amazement and quicken our curiosity. They ended in a crevice of sand, here a little wider than elsewhere. At the bottom on either side, two gigantic statues or busts of stone had been erected. Their bases were buried in the sand, and they rose to quite twice my height above and I was good six feet and more tall. These statues were carved into the rough yet not unreal likenesses of human faces.

Why we had not discovered these stairs from seaward was because they didn't come squarely down to the water's edge at right angles to the wall, but lay, as it were, parallel to a niche within the wall so that they were somewhat sheltered from observation from the sea.

We broke upon them suddenly, therefore. Mistress Lucy clutched my arm. "The giant stairway!" she cried in amazement.

"It is indeed," I said, "just as it was set forth in the parchment."

"And the great stone faces," she added, "to a voice in which there was a touch of awe."

"Let us go on now and ascend the stairs," I said, taking her hand and leading the way, and she was so preoccupied that she did not notice.

I observed as we approached the stairs that the rock had been worn smooth by the wind and weather, or maybe by the passing of many feet and was quite practicable for ascent. The angle at which they rose was steep too.

The ascent was easy enough for me, but hard for her, and several times I made bold to lift her up the higher steps, which she suffered without complaining. She told me long afterward that my manner toward her then and thereafter had been perfect. When we had reached the top before us lay a broad pathway rudely paved with the same hard stone. This road led straight into the interior of the island of which we could see as yet nothing, because the wall hereabouts was covered with dense, luxuriant vegetation. Progress was difficult even in the pathway. It would have been impossible in some places but for my heavy coat with which I cut a path where the place had become overgrown by trees and bushes which had forced their way through the cracks, overturning and breaking the heavy flagstones and blocking up the path, which it was evident had not been traversed for generations, perhaps not since the old buccannier himself had walked along it beneath the spreading trees.

For perhaps a mile we pursued our journey across the top of the island, winding in and out among the trees through the jungle, the path evidently seeking the most level direction for the top of the wall was very much broken and irregular.

At last we came to an open spot on the inner edge overlooking the whole island, and before us lay such a picture as few eyes, at least of our race, had ever looked upon. The wall ended abruptly and fell on the inner or landward side as precipitously as it rose outwardly and to seaward. Before us lay a most extraordinary valley, perhaps three or four miles across and maybe half as long again in the other direction and which was walled about on every hand. It was sunk beneath this wall a crest for perhaps 100 feet or more.

In the center of the valley the land rose a little higher than the island wall in a very considerable hill, true, crowned on the slopes, but largely bare on the crest. Through the valley ran a brook, which ended in a little lake, which I suspected had some subterranean connection with the ocean. As far as we could see—and the whole circuit of the island was now clearly visible to us—the enclosing wall was unbroken. The valley was filled with clusters of trees, and alternating stretches of grassy meadow.

We should have been hard put to it to descend the wall to the valley were it not for the fact that the same people who built the stairs that gave access to the wall from the sea had built a similar flight when led to the valley. Before we went down the descent of the stairs we drank our fill of the beauty and mysterious charm of it all. In deed, there was no sound that came to us except the twittering of the birds, of which there were many, brilliantly plumaged, flitting in the trees. All appearance, especially that flattened hill-lock in the center. I have since written with many men and studied the workings of the most learned geologists. They have fancied that perhaps the rocky projection in the middle of the valley, where we saw the great altar of sacrifice with its attendant idols later on, was the original island, which was once surrounded by a coral reef, which was now become a wall, and that some great upheaval had lifted the whole up out of the water in ages gone by and that the barrier reef over which we had passed was the second attempt of the busy little insects to surround the island again.

"What is to be done now?" asked my little mistress.

"I hardly know," I answered. "What is exercising me most now is, first of all, what is going on in that same unknown ship, and next, how we shall finally get away from here."

"You are impatient," returned my lady, smiling. "Impatient for you, madam," I interrupted, checking myself from further self-revealing speech just in time. "One thing at a time," she continued. "By the favor of God, we have escaped from the murderers and murderers. We shall not starve upon this island, and I have no doubt that sooner or later you will devise some means of our escape."

It was past noon by this time. I made sure of it by looking at the sun and confirming it by my watch, which I most carefully kept running during all our sojourn on the island, which indicated close on two bells, 1 o'clock. Our talk of the ship recalled me to myself.

"I think," said I, "that we had better postpone the exploration of the island until another day and go back to our landing place. If I know the men that ship they will guess that we have escaped to this island and they will bring her round to this side, where we may have them under view and they us."

"Think you that they can come at us?" she asked, in sudden alarm. "I think not," I answered, confidently, "but still to make sure I should like to have them under observation."

Well, to make a long story short, we retraced our steps over the broken path until we reached the stairs on the other side. The descent of them was much easier than the ascent, and by 2 of the clock we stepped on the sand again. There before us in the distance was the ship. We saw them quite plainly, and I doubt not they caught sight of us immediately also. They were scarcely a quarter of a mile away from the reef, perishingly near, I thought, and we could mark them crowding the rail and staring landward. We could see them brandishing their weapons and we could imagine the yells which must have arisen from the decks when they caught sight of us.

The rumbling of the ship did not content themselves with simply staring at us, for presently they assembled on the port quarter—the ship was under all plain sail on the starboard tack at the time, the wind having fallen to a gentle breeze during the day—and clambered into the cutter, swinging at the davits. As she was lowered into the water, fully manned, Mistress Lucy drew closer to my side, seizing my arm with both hands.

"Let us fly! They are coming to take us!" she cried in great alarm. "But they are on a vain errand!" I reassured her.

"But why? How can you know that? Oh, Master Hampden, let us hasten away."

"We have a protector," I answered confidently enough.

"God?" asked her extended hand, which she offered without resistance. I sat for a long time before the fire, thinking and making plans for our escape. The ship didn't give me much concern, because I was sure she couldn't come at us and in the end she must go away and leave us.

A long time I sat there until I finally fell asleep. I must have slept some time and soundly for I was weary. It was she who awakened me. When I opened my eyes and saw her sweet face bending over me and heard her dear voice calling me I declared I almost felt as if I had died and gone to heaven and was being welcomed by an angel.

Our first waking thought was for the ship. She was still there in the distance. She had been how to (furling) the night. I could imagine what fierce debate and wrangling there were aboard her.

The day that passed was much like the afternoon before. Although we were by this time persuaded that the reef was an absolute protection, a vague possibility that they could devise means to pass it in some way kept us uneasy on the sand. We must have them under observation. We were eager to explore the beautiful vale enclosed by the huge rampart, but we did not dare to go where we could not watch the ship. We did walk along the shore and ascend the giant stairs in the afternoon, then, while she stood beside me, within cutting distance of us, I managed to penetrate the jungle with ax in hand, so that finally I made shift to cut down a cocoa palm tree, and we gathered as many delicious nutmeats we could carry and returned to the shore.

"That night the sun set amid lowering clouds. With a sailor's weather sense, I was sure that we should have a storm. I'm afraid and Glibby sensed it. We could see them making things snug and aloft. They were moved enough seamen, as far as that goes. The wind, if it came, would be off shore, and there would be no danger of the ship being driven upon our reef, but there were islands to leeward, which they seemed to have forgotten, which I remembered.

I explained all this to my little mistress as I made things snug for the night. She would be perfectly protected by the overhang of the cliff and the overturned boat, and I told her, although I left her alone, in the boat, that the same overhang of the cliff would protect me from the wind and the rain if the storm broke. And so after prayers again and a long look seaward we went to sleep.

About midnight, as far as I could judge, I was awakened. The storm broke with all the suddenness and intensity of the tropics. Such peals of thunder and such flashes of lightning I have never witnessed, although I had been in many storms throughout the world. To sleep was impossible. Mistress Lucy came out from her boat and stood beside me as we leaned against the cliff while the storm drove harmlessly over our heads.

We could see the ship at intervals by the vivid flashes of lightning. She was making fearful weather of it. She was always a wet ship, and the huge waves fairly rolled over her. Once she went over nearly on her beam ends, and I thought she was gone. I didn't sleep a wink. Presently she drove off before the wind with a rag of her foretop's sail showing, and that was the last we saw of her or her men, we thought.

Storm bound under the lee of the cliffs, we passed long and anxious hours the next day, although our only misfortune was the inclemency of the weather, for we were completely sheltered, and we had plenty of the refreshment of the coconut to vary our other food. The second or third day began the tempest finally blew itself out, although the great surging sea still broke tremendously over the barrier reef and the spray shot a score of feet or more above the crests of the highest waves. It was only the reflex of the storm, however, for during the night the wind had subsided into a gentle breeze.

When we scanned the sea next morning there was, of course, no sign of the ship. Our first inclination, and there was none to say us any more, was to mount the stairs, cross the wall and look for that cave. We had neither chart nor record left, we had but our memories to trust to, but we were both agreed that the cave lay in the inner wall and that the parchment said that the central one of three adjacent openings would give entrance to the treasure chamber. And we could get a bearing on it from the central hill.

Now I had noticed that the coral wall both on the outer and inner sides was honeycombed with openings, rifts, fissures and caves which, by the way, were more frequent and deeper on the inside face, why I know not. We should have been compelled painfully to climb over the wall to search the whole face of the cliff in its entire extent of miles or so, but for the further direction of the parchment. I was thankful that, sailor like, old Sir Philip had using some of the old collects of the church and adding one of her own making in which she besought God to care for us further, while she thanked him for having raised up a defense for her in my poor person, only she did not so describe it. I listened very humbly, saying a heartfelt "Amen" at the end.

There was a silence for a little space when she had finished, and in that silence I devoted myself before God to her service again, and then she rose and gave me her hand.

"You have been a true knight and gentleman," she said softly, her eyes shining, "and I thank you."

I could only take it dumbly and stare at her like the great fool I was, whereat she smiled brightly, although her eyes suddenly filled with tears.

"And now," she added, "God keep you. Good night."

I then kissed her extended hand, which she offered without resistance. I sat for a long time before the fire, thinking and making plans for our escape. The ship didn't give me much concern, because I was sure she couldn't come at us and in the end she must go away and leave us.

We should have been compelled painfully to climb over the wall to search the whole face of the cliff in its entire extent of miles or so, but for the further direction of the parchment. I was thankful that, sailor like, old Sir Philip had given us the bearing. How did his words mean? Something like this, his memory told me.

"Too fynde ye months of ye trewe save take ye beatings alonge ye wouthe of ye three Godes on ye Altar of Skulls on ye middell hille. Wh. ye line strykes ye bigge knike in ye walle with ye talle palmme, his tye, bee three hoises. Climbe ye stones. Enter ye centre. It is there."

Plainly our first duty was to descend into the inclosed valley and explore the hillock in the center. I made no doubt but that we should find some sort of an altar and more of those curious stone images there. If they still remained the rest of our task would be comparatively easy.

With this determination, therefore, we set out. As I did not know how long our exploration would require and as I rather thought we should have to make a day of it, we started bedtime. Indeed, as we invariably retired shortly after sunset we naturally rose at break of day. I took along food enough for the day, knowing that we could get water from the brooks and certain fruits which I judged would be good for us from the trees.

We went directly to the stairs and mounted them. Delaying but little on the crest, we crossed it rapidly and fairly entered the valley. It was with a feeling of awe that we stood for the first time within the vast cup at the foot of the inner stairs, completely shut out from the world by the great towering rampart of rock which entirely inclosed us. I had never felt so far removed from the world as then. Outside, of course, the limitless ocean ran beyond the barrier reef, but one could follow it unto the dim, far-off distance with his vision. Within the cup the glance fell upon the rocky wall on every hand. It was almost like being in a prison for all its tropic loveliness.

Beneath the trees and quite invisible from above, a paved road or path, barely wide enough for four to walk abreast upon, extended straight across the island to the hillock in the middle, while smaller paths seemed to follow the course of the walls on either side. The ground was gently rolling, and the road, though overgrown in places and badly broken, was in much better condition than the broader path on the top of the wall. I suppose the fact that it was sheltered protected it. We passed along it for a mile and a half without much difficulty.

Finally we landed at the foot of the hillock. As I had observed from the wall it was grassy and tree clad indeed, we should have been hard put to it to ascend it, so dense was the vegetation, but it was not for the fact that the path was continued around the hill constantly mounting. Where it ran the somewhat shallow earth had been cut away on the hillside and the rock surface laid bare. Of course this path was frightfully overgrown.

We ascended with the utmost care. I finally drew my little mistress, her face bedewed as well as my own, up the last steep ascent and stood upon the crest.

We could now see why the top of the hill had seemed level when we first looked at it from the wall. Indeed, the coral rock rose in a sharp escarpment eight or ten feet above the highest treetops making a sort of tableland or platform. This level, probably artificial, had been paved with the huge, dark gray rock of the stairs and statues and pathways. I may say in passing that in all our exploration of the island, which however, was not very thorough or complete owing to the shortness of our stay upon it, we saw no quarry whence this rock could have been taken, and the only way of accounting for its presence was that it had been brought there across the seas by the makers of the monuments and stairs, whoever they might have been. They must have had large seaworthy vessels and adequate means of land transportation, to say nothing of a most considerable engineering ability to accomplish these mighty works.

Well, the level top of the hillock was in shape a parallelogram, in extent perhaps an acre and a half. It was the most curious place I have ever seen in the middle of it, with its four sides parallel to the sides of the plateau was a huge stone platform or altar perhaps 100 feet long by 70 feet wide. Completely surrounding this altar, but some distance away from it so as to make an aisle perhaps ten feet in width, rose a line of huge statues carved, like these at the foot of the stairs,

VOGEL'S MINSTRELS TONIGHT

John W. Vogel's Big City Minstrels is said to be a combination of mirth, mimicry and music, absolutely and positively the brightest most entertaining and funniest advanced minstrel entertainment ever presented in public approval. It is so filled with sparkling fun that you hardly find a lone laugh before you are plunged in-draw which amuses those of the Theatre Fifth who witness the comedian's work. His characterization is not a burlesque, neither is it an imitation of any of the many types of the much abused character "Zerk" as played by Mr. Sidney. It is a jolly little fellow, more suited for fun, a lighter as well as a laugh maker, always ready to inject in any act, scene which may be humorous, and on this account always losing money without learning the to another. There is a fund of humor that holds one in constant merriment from start to finish. You wish to enjoy an evening of pure wholesome fun without vulgarity, do not fail to attend this entertainment which will be given at the Soisson Theatre tonight as it will be their only appearance here this season.

The Uniontown Gazette said this of the show: "The show surpassed all expectations although a class production was anticipated in the persons who the theatre expect the best when John Vogel comes to town." After the performance tonight the troupe will be entertained at the Comellville Elks home, and it will be very soon.

George Sidney, the funny little comedian to be seen at the head of the 1914 edition of the "Busy Izzy" company at the Soisson Theatre Friday, September 12, is an actor who has no counterparts in the American stage. There are many comedians who copy the Hebrew role. There are some who have won enviable reputations doing so. Sidney has created a He-lesson of providence. This comedian's work is too well known to call for any comment.

Miss Carrie Webber is to be Mr. Sidney's chief aid in the tumbling and assisting them will be found an exceptionally large and clever corps.

"HUMAN HEARTS." The powerful and impressive melodrama, "Human Hearts," presented by an exceptionally strong company of players, will be entered to the approval of lovers of all that is clean and wholesome in melodrama, on the stage at the Soisson Theatre Monday, September 15. "Human Hearts" has been firmly established as one of the most original and interesting of modern dramas. The author has long been known as a playwright, but in the present instance, he has surpassed all his former efforts. For ingenuity, strength and brilliancy "Human Hearts" is a marvel of stagecraft, done by a master hand in stage adaptation. The author has poured out his entire store of theistic knowledge in this place. He has produced a work magnificent in possibilities for a melodramatic public.

As Christian Bible Students—The Satisfactory Proof of "Why God Permits Evil."

One of the questions which comes to nearly every thinking mind today is, "Why does God permit evil?" As we look about us in the world we observe that it is filled with sorrow and trouble, sickness and pain and every trial we could enumerate, and we cannot help wondering WHY GOD ALLOWS IT. We realize that He is almighty and that He could prevent it if He wished. We read in His Word that He is more willing to do for His children than are earthly parents for theirs, and we know how much that means; yet sometimes it seems that those who try to do and live right have the most trouble. This question is made very clear in a book entitled, "The Divine Plan of the Ages." Its statement is backed by Scripture, and shows that while God does not sanction evil HE HAS HAD A PURPOSE IN ALLOWING SIN AND DEATH TO REIGN THESE SIX THOUSAND YEARS. This and many other subjects of deep interest to all of God's people are discussed fully and in language easy of comprehension.

Choate and Depew. At an annual dinner of the St. Nicholas society Ambassador Joseph H. Choate was down for the toast "The Navy," while Senator Depew was to respond to "The Army."

Depew began by saying "It's well to have a specialist. That's why Choate is here to speak about the navy. We met at the bar once, and I never saw him again till we reached Liverpool. When I asked how he felt he said he thought he would have enjoyed the trip over if he had had any ocean air. Yes, you want to hear Choate on the navy."

Choate responded: "I've heard Depew hauled as the greatest of dinner speakers. If after dinner speaking, as I have heard it described and as I believe it to be, is the art of saying nothing at all then Dr. Depew is the most marvelous speaker in the universe."

Pretty "Flying Widow" Ready to Risk Life In the Air to Foster the Suffragist Cause

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Flying for votes is the latest wrinkle of the New York state suffragists, who are prepared to go even as high as the clouds to win the state. Mrs. Mary Sims, pretty and chic, who is called the "flying widow," is becoming one of the daring women of the air who are ready to risk their lives in the ozone provided it will foster the campaign for votes. She was one of the star features recently at a suffragist aviation meet at Garden City, N. Y.

The strongest endorsement of merit.
The best proof. Read it:
Mrs. Lawrence Francis, 411 Tenth St., Connellsville, Pa., says: "Don't's Kidney Pills cured me of a severe attack of kidney trouble about five years ago and I have had no sign of it since. Others of our family have used Don't's Kidney Pills and they have never failed to bring prompt relief from backache and other kidney disorders. The benefit I got from Don't's Kidney Pills has been permanent. My former endorsement of them still holds good."

WRIGHT METZLER COMPANY, CONNELLSVILLE

Opening

Men and women who appreciate beauty and quality in apparel—piece goods — things for home use. and seek the correct styles for 1913 and 1914, are invited to be present at the all day Friday, September Twelfth.

IN AUTUMN GARB—the Connellsville store of Wright-Metzler Company will present the new modes for the coming season. You who depend upon us for correct and dependable apparel and the many things—staple or unusual—for the home, will be gratified with the exhibits.

Startling changes will be noticed in the newer clothing for women and girls:

—The Millinery with its soft lines, draped brims and trimmings at extraordinary angles;

—The Tailored Suits with their waist coats and fur decorations;

—The Costumes showing combinations of plain and broche fabrics;

—The Gowns tight at the foot, bulging in the middle, and with shoulders drooped;

—The Frocks in strange but pleasing colors for day wear, shopping and the street.

—Fabrics are of supple texture, quaint of pattern and in beautiful new colors.

—Silks are rich in bright colors, soft and corded.

—Trimings are more elegant than we've ever seen them.

—Footwear shows slender lines, poise and extreme comfort.

—Men's Suits, Hats and Coats—in point of elegance, are far and beyond the styles of former years. Everything is dressy, distinctive and smart to the last degree. You will see in the clothing store men's apparel of the highest style-type—much of it on a par with the exhibits in very exclusive men's shops in the largest centers of trade.

—Floor Coverings—rugs and carpets of beauty and service—ability in design and colors not previously seen. Our collection of floor coverings of a higher quality is not equalled in the city.

—Lace Curtains, in materials and workmanship of a higher grade than usual for such modest prices.

—The Linen Store with its fine china, cut glass and kitchen utensils of a high order will be an interesting place to visit. The clean, airy, very busy Grocery Store is on this floor also.

Opening

signalizes our complete readiness with ALL that's new for Fall.

What a pleasure it is—that of having the new things before their newness is dimmed by repetition.

Come, please, morning or afternoon.

Caught a Bad Cold.
"Last winter my son caught a very bad cold and the way he coughed was something dreadful," writes Mrs. Sarah J. Duncan, of Tipton, Iowa. "We thought sure he was going into consumption. We bought just one bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and that one bottle stopped his cough and cured his cold completely. For sale by all dealers.—Advertisement."
